

Clockwise from left, Avinash's version of Surf n Turf; Chef Amninder Sandhu, who opened Bawri in Assagao; the three-course platter at the Fly Dining experience, Bambolim; For The Record-Vinyl Bar in Panaji served good food with a side of vinyl; slow-cooked tarbooz at Bawri

Fernandes showcase the diversity of Goan food through a sit-down lunch at the former's home; they also run a restaurant in Margao. Some villages away, Chef Martins hosts a chef's table at his family farm.

Those seeking food with a side of adventure can avail culinary tours. Samuel Almeida (The Goan Friend) organises outdoor cookouts, backyard barbecues, and clam foraging, which includes cooking the caught clam. Soul Travelling has a Culinary Experience in Chorao and a Secret Food & Tavern Trail that takes people to taverns and other historic culinary landmarks in Panaji. Make it Happen has a food trail in Fontainhas.

In the manicured lawns of Grand Hyatt Goa lies a unique dining experience. Fly Dining is where people are treated to a meal, strapped to a metal platform 160 metres in the air with a stunning 360-degree view. It's emblematic of Goa's current culinary scene: unique, memorable, and guaranteed to turn heads. ■

HIGH SPIRITS

You can't go to Goa and not have a drink. These curated experiences make it special

Floating Feni Experience

At the century-old Cazulo Fazenda distillery set in a cashew farm in Cansaulim, you can learn about the process of making feni, what to pair it with, how it works in a cocktail, and more. The feni pairing at a table set in a natural pool makes for a great photo-op

Whiskey Appreciation

Learn all about the making of the award-winning Paul John whisky on a tour of its Visitor Centre at the distillery in Cuncolim. The tour ends with a tasting

Brew A Beer

In Latambarcem, a distillery tour shows you how Maka Di beers are created, and it ends with a tasting in their garden

Gin Stories

At Adventurist Spirits Distillery, you can learn about the making of Tāmras Gin, see the copper still, the botanicals used, and how to nose and taste gin during a tour that lasts a whole hour
