Ging Tea House, Darjeeling

If you've always wondered how luxuriously laidback life might be as a tea planter living in a quaint colonial bungalow, then this heritage plantation retreat near Darjeeling may be your answer. Originally built in 1864, Ging Tea House has been tastefully restored, offering six private rooms with old wooden flooring, exposed rafters on high ceilings and period furniture and drapes. A tour of the tea estate and factory is a must to learn about the history of tea in India as well as the growing and production processes. If you visit during plucking season, you could also put on a wicker basket and try your hand at the task.
