according to legend, the upper citadel was built by Krishna's army. Indeed, the very name Junagarh literally means old fort. Over the centuries, Saka, Rajput, and Muslim kings would rule over it. As we shall see, Junagarh would be the focus of important events when India gained independence in 1947. Barely half an hour's drive away is Gir National Park, the last refuge of the Asiatic lion.