booth-level body has a president, a general secretary and an agent.

According to state BJP president and Lok Sabha MP V.D. Sharma, the plan has led to the digitisation of party work in around 94 per cent of the booths. "It helps in effective monitoring of party work right down to the booth level. A similar approach helped the party immensely in the Gujarat civic body elections last year," says Sharma.

The plan involves booth-level teams zeroing in on voters of their respective booths and classifying them into three categories: those opposed to the BJP; beneficiaries of various schemes launched by BJP governments in the state and at the Centre; and influential people who didn't vote for the BJP but could be brought over to the party's side.

To ensure that the booth-level workers are up to the task, a training exercise would be held in all 1,020 mandals in the state. To get beneficiaries of government schemes to vote for the BJP, the workers have been told to make them directly associate what they have been given—say, a house under the Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana, or free rations—with the party in power. Laadli Laxmi sammelans and Ayushman Yojana meetings are to be held at the booth level with the beneficiaries of these schemes so that the workers can drive home the point. Moreover, to enable regular interaction with voters, the workers will organise celebrations on the birth anniversaries of B.R. Ambed-
