ART FOR ALL

BMW has long been known for its unique 'art cars'. Its latest offering in this vein–the 'Future is Born of Art' initiative–saw its first all-electric vehicle, the iX, serving as a canvas for artists, with the theme being 'sustainable circularity'. Four artists submitted proposals for this project, and while the judges saw value in all of them, Faiza Hasan's work stood out. Her proposal was to depict a coming-together of all kinds of people against a common backdrop. Hasan, who likes to explore the relationship between self and society, says she sees sustainability as being linked to connectedness. Alongside drawings of everyday folk, she uses Urdu words–like 'suno (listen)', 'tasawur (to imagine)', 'umeed (hope)' and 'nigehbaan (guardian)'–in a bid to remind people of the importance of paying attention to the voices that could help shape our collective future.
