town known locally as buruda rajacha qila or ‘the fort of the king basket-maker’. This proved to be the remains of a Buddhist stupa containing relics and a silver coin of the Satavahana king Raja Yajna Satakarni.

The Vaishnava temple of Trivikram at Ter, originally a Buddhist chaitya-griha or prayer-hall, photographed by Henry Cousens, who identified Ter as the ancient Tagara of the Romans. The flat-roofed structure is a later addition.
