

Captured Mappila rebels under armed escort, 1921.

> Brutally dishonouring women, flaying people alive, wholesale slaughter of men, women and children, burning alive entire families, forcibly converting people in thousands and slaying those who refused to get converted, throwing half dead people into wells and leaving the victims to struggle for escape till finally released from their suffering by death, burning a great many and looting practically all Hindu and Christian houses in the disturbed areas … cruelly insulting the religious sentiments of the Hindus by desecrating and destroying numerous temples in the disturbed areas, killing cows within the temple precincts, putting their entrails on the holy image and hanging skulls on the walls and the roofs.[17]

Traumatic as the Mappila insurrection was for Malabar's non-Muslim population, its impact on the Muslims in South India was far more devastating, and is still being felt to this day in terms of a reluctance in some quarters to engage
