opposite end of Delhi from Nizamuddin's dargah, Akbar seemed to send a silent rebuke to his foster brother for his terrible crime.

Meanwhile, the other great foster family, the family of the murdered Ataka Khan, had gathered together in a fury, demanding vengeance. The Ataka Khail had to be shown Adham Khan's broken body before they could be dissuaded from taking immediate and bloody retribution. They were still potentially dangerous at court, however, and to neutralize them temporarily Akbar sent them away on campaign against the rebellious Sultan Adam Gakkhar in the Salt Range. Then they returned to their jagirs in the Punjab, watched carefully by Akbar until such time as he was able to conclusively decimate their dangerous power.

---

*Founder of the Chishti Sufi order of India.

*Also known in some sources as Maanmati and Shahi Bai. Her mother was Bharmal's Solanki wife, Rani Chandravati.

†At Man Singh's birth, an astrologer had predicted a troubled start for the child. So he was sent away 40 miles south of Amer, to a palace built specially for him at Muazzamabad, along with his mother and a hundred boys for company.