1578: Akbar invites scholars and thinkers outside the Islamic fold to his ibadat khana.

1579: After the announcement of a mazhar, Akbar is proclaimed the Padshah-i Islam or Mujaddid of the Age. The phrase ‘Allahu Akbar’ is included in a verse by Faizi, a poet of the Mughal court and brother of Abu’l Fazl.

1582: Mirza Hakim is defeated. He dies of alcohol poisoning three years later.

1582: Raja Todar Mal is made the imperial diwan.

1582: The Persian translation of the Mahabharat, Razmnama: The Book of War, commences. It is completed eighteen months later.

1585: Yusuf Shah Chak, Sultan of Kashmir, is defeated at Baramullah.

1586: Yusufzai Disaster, in which more than 8,000 Mughal soldiers, including Birbal, are killed.

1586: The Marwar Rathores send a daughter, Rajkumari Mani Bai (also known as Jagat Gosain), the daughter of Rao Udai Singh, to be married to Prince Salim. Akbar gives her the title Taj Bibi though she was popularly known as Jodh Bai.

1586: Akbar leaves Fatehpur Sikri for Attock Fort and the north-west frontier, then moves his capital to Lahore.

1587: Akbar issues an order permitting widows to remarry.

1589: Abu’l Fazl begins work on the Akbarnama.

1595: Peace treaty between Chand Sultan and the Mughals negotiated by Abu’l Fazl.

1596: The Mughal Empire grows to an unprecedented scale.

1598: Akbar leaves Lahore for the Deccan.

1598: Defeat of the rebellious Uzbeks after the death of Abdullah Khan Uzbek.

1599: Ahmadnagar is besieged. Chand Sultan is murdered by rivals from within her domain and the Mughals capture the city and the fort.

1600-1604: Salim openly revolts against his father.