

The US decision to invest heavily in China and transfer technology to Beijing helped it pull ahead. The US government favoured China over India

The Chinese Communist Party did a U-turn and invited foreign investment and it worked brilliantly for them. I'd like India to do the same

MICHAEL PILLSBURY
Author, Senior Fellow for China Strategy, The Heritage Foundation

Photographs by MANISH RAJPUT

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- China stopped the World Bank and IMF from announcing that their economy had surpassed America's. They play all this down, never brag
- Amid growing China-Taiwan animosity, US ambiguity about who owns Taiwan is keeping Beijing from launching an offensive
- The Chinese are very sensitive in measuring the 'China threat' theory across the world
- No real global coalition was formed against China's conduct in the world
- In spite of aggressive moves by Xi Jinping, America's investment in China is increasing
- China sees the growing India-US ties as a great threat to its long-term objectives