

BYJU RAVEENDRAN

I come from a small village. I went to a government school. Forget about finding good teachers, finding teachers itself was a challenge, which forced me to become a teacher in my school itself

♦♦♦

Everyone talks about the people we had to lay off. But no one talks about the people we hired... We have 55,000 people working for us. That's a huge responsibility

♦♦♦

DIVYA GOKULNATH

One thing that I've really learned from Byju is the importance of never giving up. Entrepreneurship is not about a single long race. It's about multiple short sprints

♦♦♦

As a business, there will be booms, there will be busts. But how would you know a business is meant to last unless it lasts the toughest of times