What sets the USTM apart is its commitment to providing free education to 20% of its students from underprivileged backgrounds. Moreover, over a thousand students across all of his institutions receive either free or concessional education. Notably, 70% of the university's teaching staff are women, serving as an inspiring model of women empowerment.

Born on 1st December 1973, in a remote village nestled in Assam's Karimganj district, Mahbubul Hoque faced life's challenges with unwavering dedication and sacrifice. Tragedy struck Mahbubul at a young age as he lost his parents during his school days and later on his supporting brother during his university studies. Despite these adversities, he persevered and sustained his education even by selling vegetables in the village market and doing tuition classes. His brilliance led him to secure admission to Aligarh Muslim University based on merit and came out successfully. However, he chose to return to his native state armed with knowledge and an old computer in hand, with the true aim of bringing about rural transformation through the promotion of education and helping others succeed in life.

Within ten years of its establishment in 2011, USTM earned the accreditation rating of "A Grade" by the National Assessment and Accreditation Council in 2021. It also gained recognition as one of the top 200 universities in India according to the National Institutional Ranking Framework (NIRF) in 2022 and 2023 consecutively. Research and development combined with outreach is one of his main focuses. To achieve success in these domains he has collaborated and signed MoUs with more than 350 organizations including IITs, NITs, top Central and State Universities like JNU, research institutions, Corporate and Industrial ventures and renowned NGOs to create platforms for students, scholars, and faculty to excel.

USTM's popularity stems from its dedication to delivering high-quality education, outstanding infrastructure, and a unique approach to motivating students. With 36 communities represented, USTM exemplifies unity in diversity. Under the patronage of Mr. Hoque, each department adopts nearby villages for their holistic development, fostering solidarity and awareness for various welfare initiatives. Mr. Hoque launched "USTM Neighbourhood Mission" to provide higher education to all the neighboring students by offering either completely free or concessional education in order to ensure that not a single student of the neighborhood of USTM Campus is deprived of higher education.

Due to his remarkable PR potential and networking skills, he successfully convinced two Former Presidents of India to visit USTM.
