With glass as her muse, this economics and mathematics graduate was introduced to the elegance of material's manipulation by sheer chance (in 1999) and everything changed after that. Reshmi Dey had always been keen to narrate stories of her thoughts, through all means at her disposal and her hands, and glass gave her that opportunity. "From the day I got introduced to it, I was captivated by the technique of glassmaking and started to weave my thoughts into the material," she says. The Bodhi Tree, a glass installation of 7 ft x 4 ft done by her, sometime back, speaks volumes about its craftsmanship and aesthetics. Every piece and collection designed by Dey has a story of its own and that allows her to infuse creativity and personal expression into her work.

PRICE ₹5,000 to ₹30,000 (craft pieces), ₹30,000 to ₹90,000 (design collections), ₹32 lakh (Bodhi Tree art piece)
