CYBERCRIME

THE MANY WAYS YOU CAN BE DUPED OF YOUR MONEY

Illustrations by
RAJ VERMA

THE LOTTERY BAIT

You get a message saying that you have won a huge amount of money, and are either asked to click a link to claim it or call for details

CUSTOMER CARE SWINDLE

Fraudsters put fake numbers on cloned websites or via Facebook ads. Call the number and an executive asks for you to share your WhatsApp screen or download a remote access app like Anydesk or ISL Light. He also asks you to make a test payment, and sees your PIN as you type it

COURIER DELIVERY RACKET

You receive a package that you haven't ordered, and may be asked to pay for it. When you refuse, you are asked to supply the cancellation code sent to your phone. Once you do that, voila, it's back to the fake customer care

RESELLING SITE CON

Someone posing as an army personnel responds to your ad on a reselling portal, and sends a spoof screenshot of payment. When you say you haven't got the amount, he makes you scan a QR code and upload the screenshot. Money, instead of getting credited, gets debited

THE DISTRESS CALL

You get a call on WhatsApp, bearing the profile picture of a relative or acquaintance, asking you to transfer money to bail them out of financial distress

FAKE DRUG PARCEL

Conmen posing as narcotics officials call to say that a package in your name contains drugs, and threaten you to pay up to prevent action

Graphic by
TANMOY CHAKRABORTY