

LOOK 2
DINING DRAMA

In this setting (below), there's a floral runner across the length of the table. Styled for a sit-down dinner, it can also be used for a buffet set-up. Lotus and marigolds are teamed with giant shola and banana flowers. Greens have been foraged, while the chinaware is placed on mats with handwoven leaves. A fruity touch comes with the use of apples, bananas and pineapples as candle bases.

LOOK 3
CONSOLATION PRIZE

We imagined this console (above) as a welcome corner, which can be used for desserts, dry fruits and paan at a Diwali party. Alongside fresh marigolds, tuberoses and sunflowers, we have also used corn husk flowers made by artisans in Bengal.

QUICK TIPS

- Don't feel you need to stick to expected festive flowers only. Mix and match your new favourites with classics to create a new look.
- When it comes to decor for the house, we believe in using accents and decor items that we already have, and working out the setting around them. Instead of buying new pieces every time, use old pieces in new ways.
- Tie in all the elements. Your decor should complement the vibe and menu of the party too.
- Think of how you can evoke different senses through your set-up: scented candles, music and flowers should all intertwine to tell a larger story.
- Adding personalised touches such as menu cards and seating tags, never gets old. They always make for a memorable touch.

Archana Raniwala is the founder of boutique floral company Bloom Barn that promises to deliver arrangements with a twist. www.bloombarn.in

Photographs by MANDAR DEODHAR