Mobile clinics were started in Haat Bazar, which is called the lifeline of Bastar, due to which health facilities started reaching every section easily. Bastar women got new identity with Brand Dannex

The Chhattisgarh model prioritizes women's self-reliance as successful entrepreneurship, rather than just skill development. In line with this, the 'DANNEX' brand i.e. Dantewada Next was launched to empower women, making them self-reliant.

So far 12 lakh garments have been made and sent for sale from the DANNEX factory. The quality and design of the readymade garments manufactured here is attracting the customers. As a result of this, there is a huge demand for these clothes at many big multinational stores and online shopping platforms as well. Readymade garments manufactured here are being exported to various states of the country as well as to many other countries. The company has so far earned an income of about Rs 72 crore from these clothes made by women. About 1000 women have been linked with direct employment through this factory. Under the patronage of the district administration, a target has been set to further expand this readymade garment industry in the form of an industrial chain, which is being operated through district self-help groups. In this direction, with the cooperation of the administration, women are continuously moving forward.

Changed picture of remote villages

The work of empowering the farmers was done through the Rajiv Gandhi Kisan Nyay Yojana. Due to this, apart from the input assistance, they also got huge financial help. The government has initiated a process to purchase Kodo, Kutki, and Ragi crops at support price from tribals in 14 tribal-dominated districts, including those affected by Naxalism such as Bastar. This initiative has provided significant economic support to the tribal communities in these regions. Along with this, employment was made available by making arrangements to sell their produce in the country and abroad by getting their produce prepared as a product through processing.

Gauthans were built through the Godhan Nyay Yojana, where the villagers were financially strengthened by purchasing cow dung at the rate of two rupees per kg. Employment was given to the villagers by preparing its products, due to which the economy of the villages started getting strengthened.

Minor forest produce is the main source of income for the people living in Naxal-affected forests of Bastar. In a bid to boost their income, the state government has increased the number of minor forest produce purchased at support price from 7 to 65. Along with this, Tendupatta collection remuneration was also increased from Rs.2500 to Rs.4000 per standard bag. Not only this, instead of private contractors, women self-help groups of the village were included in its purchase and employment opportunities were provided to them. Relief to 12.50 lakh families through Tendupatta Collector Social Security Scheme delivered.

Farmers belonging to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes are being given complete exemption in electricity bills. Gauthans are being developed as rural industrial parks, where work is being done to make the women of the village self-reliant along with employment.
