ACHIEVERS

THE NATIVE DRUM BEATS

Men and women whose success has done their indigenous communities proud

Photograph by BANDEEP SINGH

CONRAD K. SANGMA, 44

Chief Minister, Meghalaya, Garo tribe

An alumnus of St Columba's School in Delhi and with management degrees from Wharton and Imperial College London, Conrad K. Sangma seamlessly combines his tribal identity with a 'mainstream' persona. The son of former Lok Sabha speaker, the late P.A. Sangma, he has been trying to build up his NPP, or the National People's Party, as a representative voice of the Northeast.

"EARLIER, THE TRIBALS FELT ALIENATED. TODAY, TRIBAL YOUNGSTERS ARE CONFIDENT, COMPETITIVE AND RARING TO SHOWCASE THEIR CAPABILITIES"