

DR MINU BAJPAI

Dean of Academics, AIIMS, New Delhi

"We are finding our undergraduates are not keen to attend classes any more... want to hook on to [online] platforms to accrue knowledge. It's a big challenge... they don't know what is good or bad. They need to be hand-held"

KAMAL KANT PANT

Principal, Institute of Hotel Management, Catering and Nutrition, Pusa, New Delhi

"There is just one curriculum, but we have to fulfil the needs of students with diverse aspirations. So, we are assigning students to different mentors who are specialised in a particular domain"

BIPIN JOJO

Dean, School of Social Work, Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai

"The aspect of interdisciplinarity and community network has been in our curriculum for years. Our curriculum is geared towards the development sector and has always been people-centred"

DR SUDHIR KRISHNASWAMY

Vice Chancellor, National Law School of India University, Bengaluru

"Students need to solve problems; not just of today but those they can't even imagine...the way we can [help] is to teach them foundational, first principles"

SIMRIT KAUR

Principal, Shri Ram College of Commerce, Delhi

"It's important for us to remain connected with the industry to bridge the industry-academia gap. It, therefore, becomes important to make students have not just the knowledge sets taught in the classrooms, but supplement them with the skill sets that are more desirable, such as big data and 3D printing... it's providing a holistic development in a dynamic situation"
