

ENTERTAINMENT

PUNE My LOVE

Veteran actor Mohan Agashe stars in Do Gubbare, a web series that celebrates the city of Pune

MOHAN AGASHE'S LATEST WEB SERIES Do Gubbare (streaming on JioCinema) unfolds in familiar territory, one that also happens to be his home—Pune. A Puneri all his life, Agashe chose to stay in the city even while pursuing a career in Hindi films in Bombay in the '80s-90s. The Pune in the Varun Narvekar-directed show is seen through the eyes of an outsider (Siddharth Shaw) trying to eke out a living. The people he encounters while doing so include Ajoba (Agashe) who becomes a life coach. The slice-of-life drama, says Agashe, nails the pulse of the city. It comes across in details like a house gate sign that reads, "Don't open if you can't close", and in how the city gradually grows on you. By the fifth episode, says Agashe, the protagonist's outlook

OTT

Behind the Scenes

A web series by Vivek Agnihotri, streaming on ZEE5 from August, documents the backdrop to The Kashmir Files

Vivek Agnihotri isn't done with Kashmir yet. A year after the release of The Kashmir Files, the polarising filmmaker is preparing to release The Vaccine War, his big-screen account of the Indian government's efforts to deliver a Covid-19 vaccine—but first, he's back with a sequel: The Kashmir Files Unreported. Consisting of research, archival footage and interviews that shaped his film, The Kashmir Files Unreported is constructed as a seven-part web series that will stream on ZEE5 from August.

As per the streaming platform, Agnihotri focuses on the "historical, ethnic and geopolitical details, encapsulating the events, mistakes, crimes and circumstances that led to the massacre and mass exodus of Kashmiri Pandits..." in The Kashmir Files Unreported. Created and produced by Agnihotri and his actor wife Pallavi Joshi, a two-minute trailer for the series recaps the blood-soaked events of The Kashmir Files before intercutting it with a montage of emotional first-hand accounts from survivors.

"If The Kashmir Files shook you up, this is going to give you nightmares," claims Agnihotri, adding that The Kashmir Files Unreported will be a "valuable, important and priceless documentation" for the world. Irrespective of the filmmaker's tendency toward hyperbole, the series seems to exist so that Agnihotri can mount a defence against the criticism of the film's

