globe and this time around, Kumaraswamy says, the goal is to offer more students and faculty the chance to participate in foreign collaborations. For example, an agreement with publishing house Springer Nature now offers faculty members the opportunity to publish their research to a wider audience with four to five books under production and the first is expected to come out by the year-end.

"We are among the top 50 universities in social sciences in the world. And within India, we have one of the most inclusive student populations thanks to our affordable tuition fee. You are a different person when you leave JNU because of the diversity of experiences we offer," says Kumaraswamy. Staying true to this purpose, the university is also emphasising the wellbeing of students and faculty members, through various healthcare programmes. And any proposed refurbishment on campus is being seen through the lens of making JNU disabled-friendly. "We are also working on clearing promotions of the faculty and filling all
