DISAGREEING WITH JOINTNESS

PROGRESS ON THE RESTRUCTURING OF THE ARMED FORCES INTO THEATRE COMMANDS IS NEARLY AT A STANDSTILL. THE IAF'S STEADFAST OPPOSITION TO IT REMAINS, ALONG WITH CRITICISM FROM EXPERTS

By Pradip R. Sagar

Most of the 20th century's conflicts were fought with land, naval and air forces working as separate units, though the successful prosecution of a war often saw close coordination between the three. In the past decades, military strategy has evolved to dictate an even closer harmony, to the creation of joint responsibility and representation of all military arms over a geographic area, or theatre, with specific
