"The NLSIU has over the past two years built, very carefully and deliberately, a large-scale expansion and inclusion plan. All in all, we are setting a scorching pace of growth that we will sustain for the next two academic years, at the end of which this phased plan would have been fully implemented"

PROFESSOR SUDHIR KRISHNASWAMY
Vice Chancellor, National Law School of India University

LLB students, go all the way to 300 BA, LLB students and as many as 100 LLM and MPP students. "This expansion of students is also in tandem with an expansion of faculty."

This year, the university will have 42-45 full-time faculty and as many as 15 full-time visiting faculty. Besides this, there are visiting faculty who teach for a term of the academic programme.

Faculty expansion is an area where NLSIU has been very successful, he says. "Not many people, two-three years ago, would readily admit that high-quality academic and professional talent would choose teaching careers. Three years later,
