Director General, Indian Institute of Mass Communication

career records in their fields. Because of these regular interactions with industry heavyweights, our students can fit into any newsroom from the very first day at work," says Professor Sanjay Dwivedi, the Director General of IIMC.

However, the IIMC administration is not ready to rest on its laurels. The institute, which boasts of a state-of-the-art library, two auditoriums, hostel facilities and multiple laboratories, constantly keeps expanding its infrastructure. With the pandemic still looming large, the institute has converted all classrooms into smart classrooms—at a cost of Rs 75 lakh—so that teaching can happen in physical, virtual or hybrid mode, depending on the situation. A new laboratory has been set up to train students in various existing and emerging editing software for print, audio, TV and web. Another lab,
