"When the year began, we had a lot of apprehensions about the placements. But to our pleasant surprise, six new companies visited for the BCA placements alone and the intake by companies has also gone up"

ASHOK IMMANUEL V.
Head of Dept of Computer Science, Christ (Deemed to be University) curriculum. Immanuel says the broad motto is 'constant collaboration'. "We call the industry people over, again and again, to see what the new trends are. When our students leave, they should be thoroughly equipped with the latest goings-on in the industry," he says. As often as possible, this is through workshops or guest talks.

Immanuel says new initiatives for the BCA course include a fast-track programme, which is being tried out for the sixth semester students.

The fast-track concept isn't new, he explains, but it has been further developed. "When it was initiated, we picked students who are fast learners for this programme. We are trying to see how well self-learning can be promoted among the students," he says. The BCA course usually has two papers (such as machine language and AWS cloud) and a project in the sixth semester. Students selected for the fast-track mode tackle these papers much earlier—in the fourth semester—so that they can focus
