an interim Australian bioregion. The Coral Sea extends 2000 km down the Australian northeast coast.

31. The Great Dividing Range, or the Eastern Highlands, is Australia's largest mountain range. The mountains and plateaus, which consist of limestones, sandstone, quartzite, schists and dolomite, have been created by faulting and folding processes is an example of block fault mountain.
32. Statement 1: INCORRECT—Fremantle is a major Australian port city in Western Australia, located at the mouth of the Swan River. Fremantle Harbour serves as the port of Perth, the state capital.
    Statement 2: INCORRECT—The Pilbara is a large, dry, thinly populated region in the north of Western Australia. It is known for its Aboriginal peoples; its ancient landscapes; the red earth; its vast mineral deposits, in particular iron ore; and as a global biodiversity hotspot for subterranean fauna.
33. Australia is a continent and an island located in Oceania between the Indian Ocean and the South Pacific Ocean. Australia is situated in the middle of the tectonic plate, and therefore currently has no active volcanism Australia is the lowest, flattest, and oldest continental landmass on Earth and it has had a relatively stable geological history
34. Australia's highest peak is Mount Kosciuszko at 2228 metres (7310 ft), which is relatively low in comparison to the highest mountains on other continents. The smallest mountain in the world is the little known Mount Wycheproof at 141 feet above the surrounding terrain. However, the mountain stands 486 feet above the sea level. The mountain is located in Terrick Terrick Range in Australia. The range is in the small town of Wycheproof, Victoria.
35. The Brigalow Belt is a wide band of acacia wooded grassland that runs between tropical rainforest of the coast and the semi-arid interior of Queensland, Australia. Lake Eyre, also called Kati Thanda-Lake Eyre, great salt lake in central South Australia, with a total area of 4,281 square miles (11,088 square km). It lies in the southwestern corner of the Great Artesian Basin, a closed inland basin about 440,150 square miles (1,140,000 sq. km) in area that is drained only by intermittent streams.