the Cotton textile mills are located in Mumbai alone. It is, therefore, rightly called as 'Cottonpolis' of India. Sholapur, Kohlapur, Nagpur, Pune, Aurangabad and Jalgaon are other important centres in Maharashtra.

Statement II: CORRECT—Gujarat, which ranks second in the production of cotton textiles, Ahamedabad is the major centre of the state. Surat, Bharauch, Vadodara, Bhavnagar and Rajkot are other centres in the state.

Tamil Nadu has emerged as an important producer of cotton textiles in sourthern states. Coimbatore is an important centre in the state. Tirunelveli, Chennai, Madurai, Tiruchirapalli, Salem and Thanjavour are other important centers here.

70. Statement I: CORRECT—In Karnataka, cotton textile industry is concentrated at Bangalore, Mysore, Belgaum and Gulberga. Kanpur, Etawah, Modinagar, Varanasi, and Hathras are important centres in Uttar Pradesh. In Madhya Pradesh this industry is concentrated at Indore and Gwalior. Howrah, Serampur and Murshidabad are important Cotton textile centres in West Bengal.

Statement II: CORRECT—Rajasthan, Punjab, Haryana and Andhra Pradesh are the other states producing cotton textiles.

The following are the factors for the localisation of textile industry in Ahmedabad-Mumbai-Pune region.

1. Availability of raw material - A large amount of cotton is grown in this belt.
2. Availability of capital - Mumbai, Ahmedabad and Pure are the places where capital for investment is easily available.
3. Means of transport - This region is well connected with the rest of India by roads and railways. It, therefore, facilities transportation of finished products.
4. Accessibility to the market - Maharashtra and Gujarat have a large market to sell textile products here. Developed means of transportation help in movement of textile products to other market centres as well as to foreign market. Now a days the market has become a dominant factor in determining the location of cotton textile industry.
5. Nearness to ports - Mumbai port facilitates the import of machinery and good quality of cotton from abroad and export