19. Equatorial climate relates to high temperatures which can be above 28°C with heavy precipitation which can be around 900 cm with heavy clouds having high relative humidity normally with very less variation in temperature. This description clearly describes the lines in the questions, so option (b) is correct.