[*] Abu Simbel was similarly ‘saved’ in 1964 when the Aswan Dam was built in Egypt.

[*] Three of these Ceylonese monasteries were called Mahisasaka, Bahusrutiya and Kumaranandi.

[*] The pea-sized bone relic was inside a gold box inside a silver receptacle with gold leaves, pearls and garnets. This was placed with crystal beads inside an earthenware pot in an outer part of the Great Stupa, not in the centre as was the norm. This helped it survive treasure seekers.
