Q. Is there any truth in Rahul Gandhi's allegation that the BJP favours the Adani Group and other big corporates?

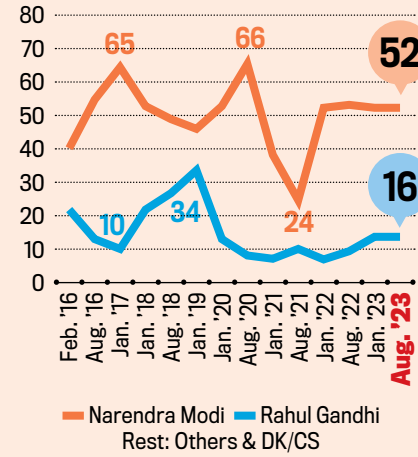

Rahul's persistent charges of crony capitalism seem to be finding popular resonance

Q. How has the Union government handled the protest of the women wrestlers?

More people are unhappy with the Centre's handling of wrestlers' protests

Q. Who is best suited to be India's next prime minister, Narendra Modi or Rahul Gandhi?

On Modi, there is overwhelming consensus; Rahul finds favour with only a sixth of the respondents

All figures in % and rounded off; DK/CS: don't know/can't say suited to be India's next prime minister.

Rahul's ratings, though, have improved after his Bharat Jodo Yatra (BJY) late last year. The walkathon has handed him a 6.5-percentage point increase from the 9.3 per cent votes he polled in the August 2022 MOTN, before the start of the Yatra. It may have helped close the gap with Modi only marginally, but the BJY has no doubt helped Rahul regain his position as Modi's principal adversary. Rahul also did better than Mamata Banerjee and Arvind Kejriwal, with 23.6 per cent saying he would be best suited among the current Opposition leaders to lead the Opposition alliance. Mamata and Kejriwal got 14.8 per cent and 14.6 per cent, respectively. Just a year ago, in the August 2022 MOTN, Kejriwal had been on top with 27 per cent, Mamata in second place with 19.6 per cent and Rahul a poor third at 12.7 per cent. Rahul has also once again emerged as the clear leader of his party, with 32.4 per cent seeing him as the best to revive the GOP as compared to 12.2 per cent for Sachin Pilot. The gap of 20.2 percentage points between the two leaders is more than double of what it was in August 2022, before the BJY.

Analyse the results statewise, and the survey shows that the NDA gains only margin-