Modi's guarantee of making India the world's third-largest economy is a chief factor that the MOTN respondents think will help the BJP the most in the 2024 Lok Sabha polls. Elsewhere, MOTN respondents praise the Modi government for its handling of Pakistan and China and for enhancing India's international stature as well as its deft handling of the G20 presidency.

What the Modi government needs to concentrate on in the remaining nine months of his term is delivering on all the key programmes initiated in the infrastructure and the welfare arenas. Those who work closely with the PM say he is hard-focused on that agenda. Dr P.K. Mishra, principal secretary to the PM, tells INDIA TODAY, "The PM, in these two terms of his government, has laid a strong foundation for the development of India. In the next five years he plans to further strengthen it and work towards economic growth to achieve by 2047 the vision of a developed nation that is inclusive, integrated and progressive."

Now for some warnings that the MOTN holds for the ruling party. Price rise and unemployment remain the two bugbears for the ruling dispensation, and again topped the failures listed by the respondents. The lack of economic growth is third. The deep concerns on the handling of key economic issues are reflected in other findings of the survey. The government's handling of the economy has seen a drop in ratings, with only 46.6 per cent considering it outstanding to good as compared to 53.9 per cent in the January 2023 MOTN. Only 29.5 per cent believe their economic status has improved under Narendra Modi since he took charge as prime minister in 2014. While 28.1 per cent say it has remained the same, as many as 38 per cent think it has deteriorated. A far cry from the utopia of 'Achhe Din' that Modi
