Q. Has PM Modi's stature risen globally?

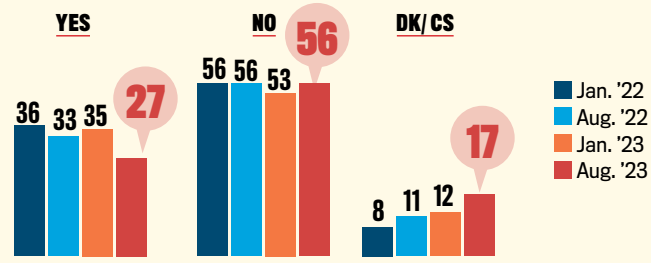

A majority takes note of the PM's rising global heft

Q. Who will be a better friend for India?

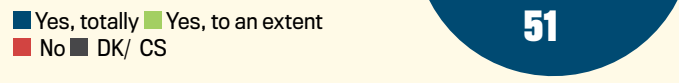

Russia and the US attract almost equal support individually from respondents

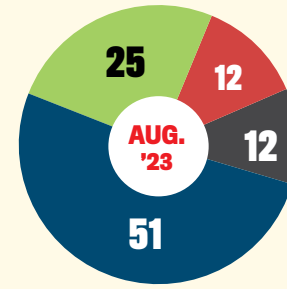

Q. Should India be holding talks with Pakistan?

Talks with Pakistan are still a no-no for most

Q. Do you think India is following the right approach in the Russia-Ukraine conflict?

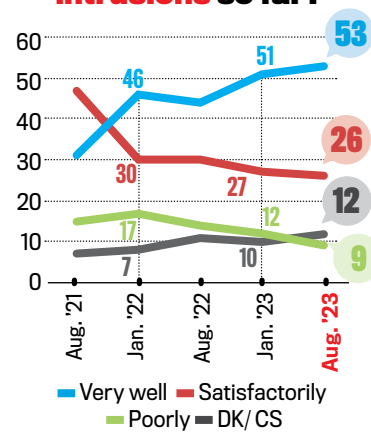

A vast majority approves of India's neutral stand in the ongoing conflict dent stand. Soon after his US visit, PM Modi made his maiden visit to Egypt, where he concluded multiple strategic agreements. On a visit to France in July, a roadmap was outlined for the next 25 years of India-France ties. While 48 per cent of the respondents say the Centre's foreign policy is 'excellent' and 22 per cent say it is 'good', nine per cent also term it 'poor', compared to 14 per cent six months back. Has PM Modi's stature risen the world? 'Yes', say 61 per cent of the MOTN respondents.

The military standoff between India and China in Ladakh and Arunachal Pradesh has entered its fourth year; military and diplomatic negotiations has failed to achieve complete disengagement of troops. The recent 19th round of military talks, too, ended without a positive outcome, with the intransigent Chinese refusing

Q. How has the central government handled the Chinese border intrusions so far?

There is widespread appreciation of India's efforts to repel China to move from Demchok and the Depsang plains. Over 52 per cent of the respondents say India handled the Chinese intrusion 'very well', while 26 per cent say it's 'satisfactory'. In all, 79 per cent of the respondents—compared to 77 per cent in January—are satisfied with the Centre's handling of the border standoff.

During the year of its G20 presidency, India has been organising multiple events across the nation. One of India's goals is to voice the aspirations of the Global South. Almost 47 per cent of the MOTN respondents say India's G20 presidency will enhance its global stature and allow the BJP to use it as a plank for the 2024 Lok Sabha election. However, 26 per cent feel it will make no difference to India's standing, only be a tool for propaganda next year. ■

All figures in % and rounded off; DK/ CS: don't know/ can't say