"THIS G20 REFLECTS THE VOICE OF THE GLOBAL SOUTH"

India's G20 presidency is a watershed moment, with the country helping shape a number of global issues. As the central figure taking it forward this year, Prime Minister NARENDRA MODI has successfully ensured that India plays a pivotal role in addressing the concerns of the Global South. Just days before the G20 Leaders' Summit, the prime minister, in an exclusive interaction with our sister publication BUSINESS TODAY, spoke about the opportunity India has to help address areas of global concern. Excerpts:

By RAHUL KANWAL, SOURAV MAJUMDAR and SIDDHARTH ZARABI

Q. India's presidency of the G20 comes at a time when international agencies are bullish about the growth potential of the Indian economy. How will the G20 summit help bolster India's image as an emerging economic power and as a credible voice at global economic platforms?

I don't think the image of a country and its branding can be bolstered through a summit. The financial world works on hard facts. It works on performance, and not perception. Whether it is the way India fought the Covid-19 pandemic and helped other countries to do so, or the way we managed our economy to make it the fastest-growing, or the way our financial and banking systems have been going from strength to strength, today, the world is aware of India's trajectory.

To see a summit through the prism of