The IIT Bombay - WashU's EMBA Program for Tomorrow's Leaders

Corporate leader's make decisions based on data, processed with their experience and their knowledge of the forces at play. In today's fast paced VUCA world, decision making is an art, what with a data deluge and a complex marketplace that is subject to global forces. There is a quintessential need to constantly upgrade to stay on top.

The Executive MBA program born out of the collaboration between IIT Bombay and Washington University in St. Louis is the only Executive MBA program in the world that confers a joint degree from both an Indian and an American university. The underlying belief is that the continuous evolution and transformation of executive education will be the most important catalyst enabling strategic transitions in the 21st century. The idea is to enable the leadership to succeed and allow change management to thrive.

The Head, Shailesh J. Mehta School of Management, Prof. S.V.D. Nageswara Rao, further added that "The IIT Bombay-WashU EMBA program embodies the spirit of collaboration and innovation. We are proud to be part of this unique partnership that fosters leadership excellence and equips professionals with the skills to drive meaningful change. We are excited to welcome Batch 9 and witness their growth as they embark on this transformative journey."

PROF. S.V.D. NAGESWARA RAO,
Head, Shailesh J. Mehta School of Management, IIT Bombay.

The EMBA program starts with business fundamentals, and then addresses leadership, strategic management themes, growth, and innovation. The program includes real-time applications you use to enhance your personal and professional development and to drive results for your organization. The curriculum is split between core and advanced functional modules. These allow for refreshers in functional fundamentals, multi-modular or cross functional training, strategic and leadership courses, people management and business communication up-skilling, all delivered through a right blend of classroom learning, case analysis, brief papers on specific topics and more significant long-term papers. Participant evaluation is a function of individual and team.

Prof. Anjan Thakor adds, "This programme will open doors and create many opportunities for you to transform organizations and make an impact on the world. As a 21st century leader, you must be prepared to meet and manage the tides of innovation, disruption and change that roil the world today. It is up to you to navigate this age of disruption with creativity and empathy. You will have to balance your decision making with data before you and the principles that guide you."

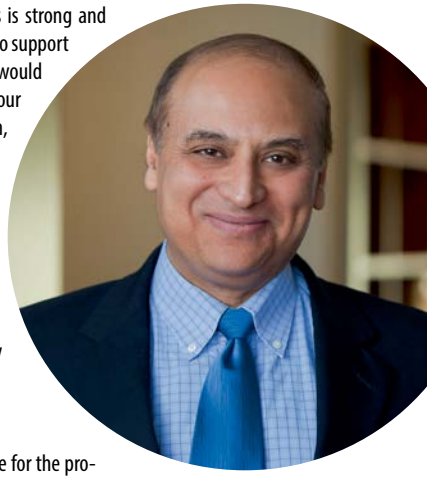

An exhaustive and immersive 18-month course, the EMBA is for a leadership role that prepares professionals to navigate from domain expertise to leadership roles. Conveniently held for 4 consecutive days, every month from Thursday to Sunday, it consists of 17 Residency Teaching Modules in India and 3 in Washington, D.C. & St. Louis.

Organized at State-of-the-art classrooms and best-in-class accommodations at IIT Bombay Campus, Mumbai it also includes One on one Executive Coaching tailored for career development.

With Alumni status and privileges of both the universities, it plugs you into a global network of achievers and business leaders across the globe.

The participants come from a range of industries and functions, are technology savvy, open to change and passionate about performance. They are winners who have demonstrated career progression and success across levels. Each one of them has a strong drive to succeed and have reached out for exceptional career milestones.

Prof. Thakor wraps up saying, "Your class is strong and filled with diverse skilled professionals who support you and challenge you. And you in turn, would support and challenge them. During your EMBA, you will experience, you will learn, you will grow and you will develop new leadership strengths. You will become more efficient and you will discover new value propositions for your organizations as you lead them through these challenging business environments. This programme is an investment in your future which will propel your careers to new levels."
