UTTAR PRADESH EMERGING AS A LE

Before the year 2017, corruption was rampant in the selection process of government jobs in Uttar Pradesh. The selection procedure was stalled in court as a result of irregularities. Consequently, the youth of the state faced unemployment and disillusionment. However, a transformative change occurred in 2017 when Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath assumed office and established a sensitive government committed to transparency, fairness, and equality. The Yogi government successfully implemented a transparent selection process that not only ensures timely employment for the youth but also prioritizes accuracy in the selection process. As a result, the recruitment in government jobs are now progressing swiftly. Youths from small villages and towns across the state are securing positions in various administrative services. The recruitment commissions and boards of the state are diligently completing the recruitment process. The selection processes have undergone numerous, unprecedented reforms that are youth-friendly. Now, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath personally hands over appointment letters to the selected youth for various government positions. This process is ongoing and reflects the government's commitment to providing continuous opportunities to deserving candidates.

Over the past six years, under the able leadership of Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, Uttar Pradesh has witnessed a remarkable transformation where the talents of its youth are being duly recognized and respected. When a society recognizes and encourages its talented youth to move forward, the path to development becomes unstoppable, and new milestones are achieved daily. As a result of this approach, the state is witnessing rapid progress. In the last six years, the state has seen more than 6 lakh government job appointments. No one has been able to raise any kind of question about these recruitments. At present, no appointment process is pending in the court, nor has any appointment process been stayed by the court. Prior to 2017, the youth in Uttar Pradesh experienced disappointment due to discrimination in the selection process within the state. Beyond the borders of the state, they faced an identity crisis. However, today, the scenario has transformed. The youth from Uttar Pradesh are now highly respected wherever they go in the country, receiving respect and admiration from all corners.

MAJOR CHANGES MADE IN THE SELECTION PROCESS

Last year, the UPPSC achieved a milestone by declaring the result of PCS-2021 within one year, matching the Union Public Service Commission's pace. Surpassing expectations, the commission announced the result of the PCS-2022 examination even before the result of the IAS-2022 examination in April this year.

The UPPSC implemented comprehensive reforms related to the examination process, starting with the removal of optional subjects from the PCS exam. In its place, the commission introduced a two-question paper system containing information about Uttar Pradesh, streamlining the examination process and making it more relevant to the state's needs.

In an effort to strengthen the interview system, the UPPSC adopted a "nameless-faceless" approach, where the identity, caste, and educational background of candidates appearing for the interview are not disclosed to the interview board. Each candidate is now identified by a unique code, enhancing objectivity and fairness in the interview process. The commission also set tough standards for the members of the Interview Board and Interview Council.

In a remarkable move towards simplifying and expediting the application process for State Public Service Commission (UPPSC) examinations, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath launched the One Time Registration System (OTR) on January 3. This system brings an end to the tiresome practice of candidates repeatedly applying for various exams. With the implementation of the OTR, the need for re-filling application forms is now eliminated, making the process significantly more streamlined.

> "No casteism, regionalism, linguism, or nepotism is being practiced in the recruitment process in Uttar Pradesh. In the last six years, all the selection commissions and boards of the state have maintained complete transparency in each and every recruitment process. The one who is eligible and capable will get the appointment. The state government is working with full commitment to provide this right to the youth."

TRANSFORMATIVE MEASURES SPUR EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Uttar Pradesh has taken transformative steps to boost employment opportunities for its youth across various sectors. Group-B and Group-C non-gazetted posts in the government have been exempted from the interview process. Arrangements have also been made for the Preliminary Eligibility Test (PET), in which lakhs of youth participate every year.

As a result of these transparent and fair selection processes, highly qualified individuals are now serving in diverse areas throughout the state. Notably, over 1.26 lakh recruitments have been made in the Basic Education Department, more than 40,000 recruitments have been done in the Secondary Education Department, and over 6000 in the Higher Education Department, all accomplished through a fair and transparent selection process that has stood unchallenged.
