There was no soot, no smoke and no rigorous practices as required for steam locomotives. The era of clean transport had arrived and electrification spread its wings just like the railways had done a few decades ago. India had become the twenty-fourth nation in the world to have an electric railway (and the third one in Asia).

87 J.M. Ovasdi, 'Genesis & Growth of Railways,' Railway Administration and Management (Deep & Deep Publications, New Delhi, 1990), chap.2, p.33

88 J.M. Ovasdi, 'Evolution and Growth of Control Mechanism,' Railway Administration and Management (Deep & Deep Publications, New Delhi, 1990) chap.2, p.49

89 Ibid

90 Ritika Prasad, Tracks of Change: Railways and Everyday Life in Colonial India (Cambridge University Press, 2016), p.230

91 Imperial War Museums, accessed 3 March 2018, https://www.iwm.org.uk/history/transport-and-supply-during-the-first-world-war

92 Parliamentary Debates, Fourth Session, Twenty-third Parliament. Legislative Council and House of Representatives, vol.227, March 11–April 28, 1931, Government Railways Amendment Bill

93 Note on merger of Rail Budget with Union Budget. Press Information Bureau, Government of India, Ministry of Railways, 16:44 IST. The note quotes Minister of State for Railways Shri Rajen Gohain's written reply to a question in Lok Sabha on Wednesday, 16 November 2016.

94 A.K. Arora, '75 Years of C.R. Electric Suburban Service (1925–2000),' pp.1–9. Seminar on transport technology on the occasion of platinum jubilee of electric traction.

95 Note: EF1 was India's first electric freight loco, where E and F stood for Electric and Freight respectively which was later reclassified as WCG-1. Here W stands for broad gauge, C for the Direct Current power traction and G for being a goods engine.

96 A.K. Arora, '75 Years of C.R. Electric Suburban Service (1925–2000),' pp.1–9. Seminar on transport technology on the occasion of platinum jubilee of electric traction.