

NITISH CASTS A LONG SHADOW

Having delivered on the promise of a caste-based survey in his state and proportional quota, the Bihar chief minister proceeds to make some electoral capital out of it

Nitish Kumar ko gussa kyon aata hai? The Bihar chief minister and patriarch of the Janata Dal-United (JD-U) has been venting his frustration quite openly of late. If, on November 3, he appeared to censure the Congress for being too preoccupied with the assembly elections to pay attention to the newly-formed Indian National Developmental Inclusive Alliance (INDIA), a week later, he took on erstwhile protege, Hindustani Awam Morcha (Secular) founder and
