internet, life remained literally behind masks.

As NUJS now prepares to bring back students to physical classrooms, some big changes are under way. The whole campus is being spruced up, with the interests of Persons with Disabilities (PWD) in mind. Classrooms are being given braille-friendly numbers as NUJS has a good number of students with various degrees of vision impairment. The university also plans to have gender-neutral washrooms for the first time.

Simultaneously, NUJS has not taken its eyes off academics. New postgraduate courses have been introduced. "We are combining law and technology that will be relevant in the corporate world and in administrative policies in the next five years like nano technology, artificial intel-
