WORLD CLASS FACULTY AND LOW STUDENT – FACULTY RATIO

An increase in the number of international students and foreign faculty joining Indian universities has enhanced the quality of education in India. With more and more foreign students flocking to India, it has resulted in the adoption of best practices and a healthy mix of elements of both the western and Indian education systems. The traditional teacher-centered learning classrooms have become a thing of the past and been replaced with learner-centric approaches. Technological advancements have made blended or hybrid learning more popular with the easy availability of a variety of tools and teaching mediums now at the easy disposal of educators. The private universities have an advantage in the quick adoption of these
