research laboratories, six industry collaboration laboratories and four centres of excellence.

The university has an advisory board in every department comprising top academics and eminent personalities from industry. With unstinted commitment to effectual pedagogy, it lays special emphasis on research and innovation. Towards this, it has over 1,200 faculty members, including over 650 PhD holders, offering a high teacher-student ratio to ensure closer supervision and mentoring of students. Research and development focus on developing product- and process-oriented technologies for sustainable development.

The university has developed strong industry relationships, supported by collaborations with MNCs, for training and placements of students. "We are committed to providing 100 per cent placement and train students to be ready for jobs. We also encourage those with innovative ideas to launch startups," says vice chancellor Dr G.P. Saradhi Varma. KLU has tied up with foreign universities to provide students global exposure through internships and exchange programmes. KLU has an impressive placement track record—testimony to its research-led education methods and industry-ready students. Last year, the university was awarded 'One District One Green Champion', under the Swachhta Plan initiative of the Mahatma Gandhi National Council of Rural Education. Among its alumni is Tollywood actor Avasarla Srinivas and former Andhra Pradesh irrigation minister Devineni Uma Maheswara Rao. ■

We are extremely happy to be ranked as the Number 1 School of Social Work by the India Today Survey, 2022. What makes us happier is that we, at TISS, have always strived to contribute to society through our teaching, research, field action projects, advocacy and networking, as well as liaisoning with the state, civil society and socially responsible businesses.

Established in 1936 as the Sir Dorabji Tata Graduate School of Social Work, TISS continues the tradition of inculcating democratic, emancipatory, and egalitarian values among students.

TISS offers the nation's best post-graduate and doctoral programmes in Social Work, Management and Social Sciences. Since inception, our pedagogy that blends classroom teaching with field-based training provides learners the opportunity and experience to evolve as human service and development professionals.
