comprehends only imperfectly, that the world was not made for man, that m a n reaches his full stature only as he realizes the dignity and worth of life that is not human. That Kalidasa seized the European mind in regard to India. In recent years that great European and typical product of the best European culture, Romain Rolland, made a more synthetic and very friendly approach to the basic foundations of Indian tought: For him East and West represented different phases of the eternal struggle of the human soul. On this subject—

Western reaction to Indian thought—Mr. Alex Aronson, of Santiniketan University, has written with learning and ability.

this truth is a magnificent tribute to his intellectual power, a quality quite as necessary to great poetry as perfection of form.

Poetical fluency is not rare; intellectual grasp is not very uncommon; but the combination of the two has not been found perhaps more than a dozen times since the world began. Because he possessed this harmonious combination, Kalidasa ranks not with Anacreon and Horace and Shelley, but with Sophocles,
