development through MGNREGA projects, PRI has paved the way for women to engage in income-generating activities, access financial services, and develop entrepreneurial skills. To accelerate women's inclusivity and role in economic activities, under WAL, Women Producer Groups (WPGs) and Self Help Groups (SHGs) have been formed which host trainings on vision setting, leadership and group management. Thus, the foundation is helping women break the barriers of traditional gender roles and create positive transformations in their lives. These groups further assist women by grooming and sharpening their skillsets relevant to the 21st century. In some areas, WPG members have also established an apex Farmer Producer Organization (FPO). Some women producers empowered under the WAL Program have come forward to take up entrepreneurial activities around the animal husbandry of cattle & goats while some others have taken up candle-making and bag-making businesses in select villages. The company is working relentlessly to tap the entrepreneurial acumen of women by encouraging them to set up small vegetable plots. 56 WPGs and SHGs comprising 650 women have been engaged in financial savings and entrepreneurship capability-building interventions over the last few years.

BUILDING A HEALTHY INDIA: CONCERTED FOCUS ON WOMEN'S HEALTHCARE

Having identified the key areas of concern regarding women's healthcare, PRI is systematically building a healthy rural India by addressing women's healthcare needs. Ensuring access to quality healthcare is a major step towards the empowerment of both the individual and the community. To ensure women's overall well-being and empowerment, PRI's health programs encompass a wide range of services tailored specifically to address women's unique health needs in both preventive and primary healthcare as well as menstrual health and hygiene. From emphasizing improvement in knowledge, attitudes, and practices of girls and women regarding menstrual health to the refurbishment of WASH facilities, the foundation has also contributed to augmenting entrepreneurial acumen in women to start small businesses around MHM products. One of the major objectives of the program is to reduce the social barriers to improve girls' attendance at school during menstruation. To change the perception and bring about a positive behavioural change, the CSR programs of the brand focus on empowering rural women by forming SHGs, Adolescent girl groups and Women's Development Centres involved with raising Menstrual Hygiene Management awareness. Capacity-building sessions of 25,479 adolescent girls and women have been undertaken so far to raise awareness and ensure a positive transformation within communities.

PINKI: PRI'S FLAGSHIP INITIATIVE TO ELIMINATE GENDER DISPARITIES

Education for all and high literacy levels are essential to building an inclusive society. However, with the urban female literacy rate at 64% and rural women's literacy rate at 31% in India, education for women is a challenge. As "Créateurs de convivialité" the PRI Foundation firmly believes in building a positive environment for everyone. Through its flagship initiative, PINKI, the company is playing a pivotal role in eliminating gender disparities in the field of education. Moreover, their scholarship program is continuously empowering the girl child in India by ensuring access to quality education. Equipping them with the ability to think critically, make informed decisions, and actively participate in social, economic, and political spheres, PRI is truly committed to the development of women. Since 2018, PINKI has been instrumental in supporting more than 3763 girl children by serving as a catalyst for their social mobility. The scholarship program has enabled talented and motivated young girls from diverse backgrounds to pursue higher education and unlock opportunities that may have otherwise been inaccessible to them given the limited resources at their disposal. PINKI has adopted a contextual gendered lens in order to mobilize and select the girl children in need of financial support resulting in more than 60% of scholars supported by PRI being girls, a large number of whom were on the brink of quitting school due to dire circumstances.
