

1998

The A.B. Vajpayee-led National Democratic Alliance government reintroduced the bill in the 12th Lok Sabha. The bill failed to get support and lapsed again. The Vajpayee regime reintroduced the bill in 1999, 2002 and 2003. Even though the Congress, BJP and Left parties supported the proposed bill, it failed the majority test.

2008

The Manmohan Singh-led United Progressive Alliance government tabled the bill in the Rajya Sabha, which passed it on March 9, 2010. It was never taken up in the Lok Sabha, and lapsed with its dissolution. At the time, the RJD, JD(U) and SP were its most vocal opponents.

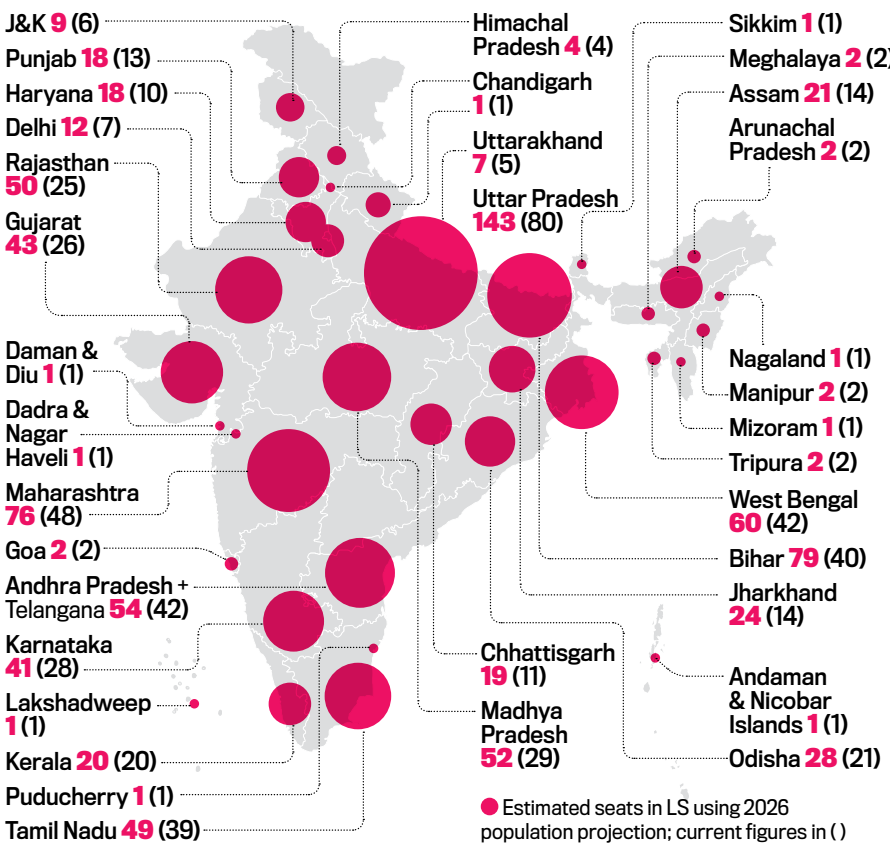

2014

The BJP promised 33 per cent quota to women in Parliament in its manifesto for the Lok Sabha election; repeated the promise in 2019 as well.

THE COMPLICATIONS DELIMITATION MAY CAUSE

The Carnegie Endowment's estimate of Lok Sabha seats post delimitation. The fear is it'll benefit the northern states more

● Estimated seats in LS using 2026 population projection; current figures in ( )

7

PER CENT

Women ministers in the Modi cabinet, as against a global average of 23 per cent across 156 countries

13

COUNTRIES

in which women hold 50 per cent or more of the positions of cabinet ministers

18

PER CENT

Women's contribution to India's GDP, among the lowest in the world, with only 25 per cent of India's labour force being female