Banking against Climate Change

BECAUSE he was elected to head the World Bank after the resignation of the controversial previous incumbent, David Malpass—a Trump nominee who was accused of being a 'Climate Change denier'. Banga is expected to prioritise private sector involvement in battling climate change

BECAUSE he is an insider with the US administration, having served on the public-private partnership for Central America with Kamala Harris, and earlier on the advisory committee for trade policy under President Barack Obama

FAST FOOD MESSIAH
A self-described 'Made in India guy', he studied economics at St Stephen's in Delhi and received an MBA from IIM Ahmedabad. He worked for Nestlé and played a role in India's fast food revolution, heading Pepsico's Pizza Hut and KFC in the early days of liberalisation

BECAUSE his impressive record as CEO of Mastercard from 2010-2021 saw the corporation's market capitalisation multiply tenfold, to $300 billion

Illustration by ARJAMA BANDYOPADHYAY

6 AJAY BANGA, 63

PRESIDENT, WORLD BANK

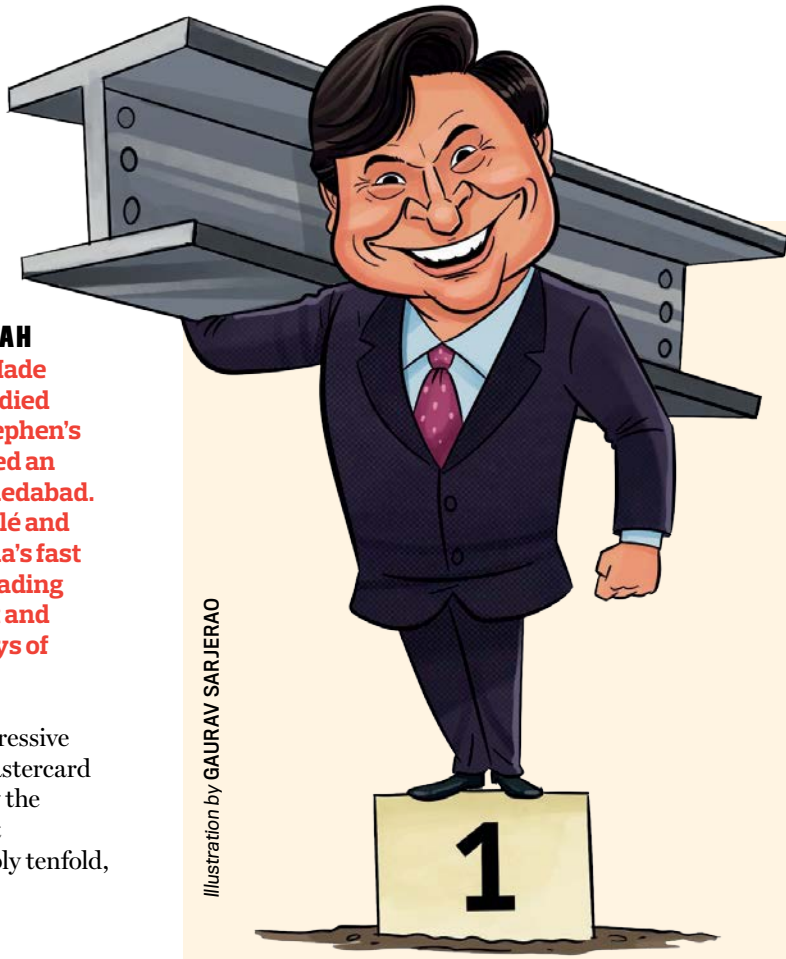

Illustration by GAURAV SARJERAO

Forging Ahead

7 L.N. MITTAL, 72

CHAIRMAN, ARCELORMITTAL

BECAUSE he's the largest shareholder of the world's biggest steelmaker outside of China, with a revenue of $79.8 billion in 2022

BECAUSE his Luxembourg-based company has been moving aggressively to grow in India since acquiring Essar steel in 2018 and most recently being cleared to take over the bankrupt Indian Steel Corporation earlier this year

THE TEAMSTER He owns a stake in the Queens Park Rangers football team

BECAUSE he made it to the sixth spot in the Sunday Times 2022 list of the richest people in the UK with an estimated fortune of £17 billion. He was fifth in the rich list the previous year