EVERGREEN SUPERSTAR

BECAUSE he continues to defy age, excelling on big and small screens. Last year, Big B scored one of his biggest box office hits to date with Brahmastra: Part One – Shiva, which netted Rs 230 crore in India. Alongside, he hosted yet another successful season—the 14th so far—of Kaun Banega Crorepati

BECAUSE he is constantly reinventing himself to stay relevant. It is not the duration of a role but its significance that matters to him. Last year's Jhund saw him play an everyman football coach to slum kids, and the upcoming multilingual film Project K, where he injured himself while filming an action sequence, are proof that he does not believe in resting on his laurels

SUNDAY DARSHAN Bachchan began the ritual of greeting his fans from his home in Juhu in 1982. The tradition continues to this day at Jalsa, unless the Big B is shooting or is unwell

THE ACTING GENE A third-generation Bachchan makes his acting debut this year. Grandson Agastya Nanda stars in Zoya Akhtar's The Archies

BECAUSE Brand Bachchan is alive and kicking, and how. The legend remains one of the most bankable faces for Indian brands, commanding an estimated fee of Rs 5-8 crore per endorsement. His brand valuation is $79 million per Kroll's latest report

10

AMITABH BACHCHAN, 80

BOLLYWOOD ACTOR

Illustration by SIDDHANT JUMDE