NO CHILD'S PLAY

Actor Nimrat Kaur is back in a web series with School of Lies on Disney+ Hotstar

Q. You were one of the first to jump onto the OTT bandwagon in 2017 with The Test Case. Thereafter, the industry exploded. What took you so long to do your second web series, School of Lies?
Long format is a thicker commitment than film.... Unless it [the project] really speaks to you, you won't have fun doing it. You go with your instinct and attach yourself to people you want to work with. In this case, it was [filmmaker] Avinash Arun.

Q. What's the best and worst part about being on a set with kids?
There was no worst part. It was entertaining. The kids today are so sharp. I really had to have my A-game on. I thought I could make them feel comfortable and 'chill' but they didn't need any of it. There were several instances when I pretended I had seen or heard the things they mentioned.

Q. Did you meet any counsellors to prepare for the part?
My sister is a former student counsellor. I've seen her addressing issues with teenagers and kids. She would be disturbed at times about the kinds of issues kids have to deal with and the impossible situations they sometimes faced at home. I spoke to her and a couple of friends who are psychoanalysts and psychotherapists.

Q. You are working with Amitabh Bachchan in your next film, Section 84. How has the experience been so far?
It is truly what dreams are made of. I am actually making notes of one of the most special experiences of my life just so I don't forget it. It is a personal memory vault I am maintaining.... It is one time when I have to push back the person I am and let the actor stay more alert.
