Bhupesh Baghel - The Chief Minister Behind Chhattisgarh's Outstanding Schemes

According to the principles of a welfare state outlined in the Indian Constitution, it is the responsibility of the government to work for the maximum well-being of its citizens. For this purpose, governments at their respective levels formulate plans. The objective of these plans is the welfare of the common people. The effective implementation of these plans at the grassroots level is a measure of the government's success in that state. Some plans have the power to bring significant changes in the lives of ordinary people. Similarly, unique plans like these were implemented by the Chhattisgarh government in the past 5 years, and they have been highly successful.

The country's second most popular Chief Minister, Bhupesh Baghel, received praise for his work from 59.1 percent of the people.

According to a recent survey, Chhattisgarh's Chief Minister Bhupesh Baghel's popularity has increased. He ranks second among the most popular Chief Ministers in the country. In the survey, 59.1 percent of people expressed satisfaction with his work. The real reason behind his popularity is, in fact, his unique and pioneering schemes that have been implemented as the first-of-their-kind welfare programs in the country. These various schemes aim to achieve overall and rapid development of society. Let's learn about these schemes that are rapidly transforming the lives of people in Chhattisgarh and also boosting Chief Minister Bhupesh's popularity.

Rajiv Gandhi Kisan Nyay Yojana

Chhattisgarh is primarily an agricultural state, with approximately 74% of its population depending on farming for their livelihoods. Over the past five years, the Chhattisgarh government has implemented various initiatives and introduced support price for specific crops to promote the prosperity and well-being of farmers. This has significantly boosted enthusiasm among the people of the state regarding agriculture.

The Chhattisgarh government has set an example when it comes to ensuring fair prices for farmers' produce. It's the only state in the country where farmers receive the highest support price
