For the Delhi centre of the Indian Institute of Mass Communication (IIMC), set up in 1965 under the Union ministry of information and broadcasting to train communication professionals, excellence is a habit. The premier institute has remained at the top of the mass communication stream in INDIA TODAY's Best Colleges survey for the past six years. That's not without a reason. Though it offers a nine-month-long post-graduate diploma in six courses, students from IIMC are the most sought-after in the communication industry for the rigorous training they receive in those months.

IIMC's impressive placement records over the years bear testimony to this. This year, more than 50 media houses, including the Times of India, INDIA TODAY and Business Standard groups, have already registered for the campus recruitment scheduled in July. Individual offers to students have started coming even before they are to sit for the final examination and campus placement. Last year, 324 of the 358 students who had opted for the placement drive, which had over 70 firms participating, got jobs. While the average salary package was Rs 4.5 lakh per annum, 13 students were offered pay packages in the range of Rs 13 lakh per annum.
