

STUDENTSPEAK

"Inter-connectedness to me is not like an aspiration but a fact of life that the college has preserved and I treat it as sacrosanct because all learning, unless it weaves through this fact, is un-aesthetic to life itself"

Currently, there is a thrust on Indian Knowledge Systems in the arts and the college has ensured that students gain as much experience of that as they can, through a variety of add-on courses such as those on spoken Sanskrit and Vedic Mathematics. In the extra-curricular domain, different student societies that focus on the arts are given encouragement as well as financial resources.

The college offered several add-on courses during 2020-2022 and also inaugurated the Relaxo Research Centre for interdisciplinary research to promote a scientific temper among students. The research centre houses more than 20 laboratories, including a gender studies centre, language lab, social and ethnographic research lab, centre for policy research, historical research lab, and climate change and Sustainable Development Goals cell, among others.

The college conducted remedial classes and guidance through a mentor-mentee scheme in which small groups of 10 to 15 students with a faculty mentor are formed for discussions and academic counselling. This scheme has been instrumental in mitigating the damage caused by the pandemic to the teaching-learning process. Classes were conducted in online as well as offline modes to ensure a smooth transition back to in-person teaching and the college conducted several skill development and career counselling workshops in the last year to bridge the gap. Many field trips were also organised. It is something the college believes in: 'Dedication to producing complete citizens'. ■
