"SRCC attracts a very intelligent cohort of students and has for long had marquee names on its faculty. It offers multiple avenues outside academics to grow and evolve. Even after all these years, whenever I assess performance, it stands me in good stead"

PANKAJ JAIN

Secretary, Ministry of petroleum and natural gas, Batch of 1987

has also taken a strong interest in being environmentally responsible. "We took major steps to enhance our environmental profile and emerge as a role model," says Kaur. In the past year, SRCC has reduced reliance on the electricity grid by transitioning to a solar power model. They have also developed an inhouse solid waste management system. Rainwater harvesting has been reintroduced as well.

There is a strong student support system in place, with extensive peer-to-peer mentoring. "Our students are groomed to be leaders and risk-takers. Apart from the college's strong placements and internships, students can also channel their entrepreneurial and creative energies in the course itself," says Kaur.

But SRCC is not just about learning
