"AIIMS, New Delhi, has been a guiding light for the country's healthcare delivery system and has been instrumental in transforming the way patient care and medical education is delivered in India," says Dr M.

ALUMNISPEAK

"While retaining its core values of excellence, erudition, and empathy, AIIMS has been consistently reinventing itself, ensuring that any challenge thrown by the changing times is suitably addressed"

DR NIKHIL TANDON

Endocrinologist, Batch of 1984
